

CONSCIOUS FASHION directory

thank you

FOR DOWNLOADING!

As someone who is extremely passionate about changing the fashion industry for the better, I found myself seeking out all the possible certifications and organizations to help the brands I work with. The many hours of research led me to create this guide which brands and designers alike have loved! Not only does it save time, but can provide insight as to which resources to pursue. This directory has helped inform brands on leading companies in this sector as well as help them to consider business goals such as transparency initiatives, CO targets,² waste reduction & redirection, educational ventures, supply chain transparency and effective transparency communication.

Not only will you find certifications but other business-changing resources and ways to get involved such as

- educational programs
- non profits
- new tech & software programs
- conferences
- initiatives
- denim specific resources

Happy reading!

please note

*This is a comprehensive directory meant for exploring what resources are out there or how you may be able to get involved in changing the fashion industry for the better. Although obvious, it is worth noting that no one brand, designer or person can be involved in every single resource, nor would every single resource be applicable. It's easy to become overwhelmed by all the possibilities! Although this guide does all the leg work for you, you will need to take some time and look into which ones would be the best fit for your brand.

Need help with that?

Schedule a free call

and we'll chat about which resources best align with your goals or the goals of the design department.

*The conscious fashion sector is ever-changing with various topics continually debated. I have personally looked into each and every resource and decided to include it in this directory with what information was provided and presented to me. Although some may view a resource as "not as sustainable," or "not as helpful," (Ex: deadstock, recycled polyester, HIGG Index, etc). I've kept them on these lists and they will remain, unless I find sufficient evidence, data, or sources that proves otherwise.

If you know of any resources that should be on this list that I have neglected to include, please email me!
